FRED BREEDLOVE JOINS SNELL & WILMER AS COUNSEL

PHOENIX (July 25, 2019) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce Fred Breedlove joined the Natural Resources practice group as counsel in the Phoenix office.

Breedlove focuses his practice in environmental and natural resources. His experience includes managing the grazing, agriculture, minerals, water rights, environmental, trespass and natural resource conservation district programs for the Arizona State Land Department, and coordinating with government agencies, such as the Arizona Game & Fish Department, Arizona Department of Forestry and Fire, the Natural Resource Conservation Service, Bureau of Land Management, Bureau of Reclamation, and Forest Service, various counties, cities, and towns on non-urban land management and planning.

“The firm as a whole and the natural resources and energy group of the firm are excited to have Fred positively impact our practice and provide our clients with the varied services they need,” said Lucas J. Narducci, Phoenix partner and Natural Resources practice group leader. “Many of our attorneys in the natural resources and energy group have worked with Fred in his various roles and are fortunate to now work with him to provide enhanced client services.”

Fred Breedlove

Breedlove has worked closely with ranchers and farmers to address resource management concerns, including cultural resources, water availability, endangered species, travel management, grassland restoration, invasive species and environmental contamination. He has experience coordinating with state and federal public officials and agencies on border issues on behalf of the state and the lessees of state grazing land. He was a frequent speaker at public meetings and events representing the State Land Commissioner and Arizona State Land Department. He also has represented land developers, private water and energy utility businesses, government agencies, and investment firms while in private practice, primarily on transactions involving various categories of water rights, including Colorado River entitlements.

He obtained his J.D. from Vermont Law School. Prior to Snell & Wilmer, Breedlove served as the Director of the Natural Resources Division at the Arizona State Land Department. Prior to that, he was an associate at Squire Patton Boggs and Deputy Counsel at the Arizona Department of Water Resources.
